COUNTIES MAKE READY EXHIBITS FOR STATE FAIR

Said That As Much Can Be Seen In Three Hours As In Sixty Day Tour

Sutter and Alameda Counties are among the first to install booths at the State Fair grounds in Sacramento for the eighty-third annual exposition, September 3 to 12.

The State Department of Agriculture and Alta California, Inc., are two agencies having exhibits virtually completed. Mark G. Johnson, in charge of the Sutter County exhibit for the last several years, is completely renovating the county's booth which captured the grand sweepstakes in 1936.

Fifty southern California advertising executives were told at a meeting in Los Angeles that as much can be seen in three hours at the fair as during 60 days of traveling about the state. The statement was made by Fred H. Bixby of Long Beach, California and Arizona livestock leader.

Secretary-Manager Robert Muckler was the principal speaker this week at the first of a series of scheduled talks on the fair. The speech was broadcast over California air lanes and originated in KFBK studios at Sacramento.

Racing entries disclose that more than $40,000 in purses is attracting a record number of runners, trotters and pacers.

DEAD HEAT IS RECORDED AT BADEN TRACK

First Tie For Winner In History Of California Greyhound Racing

The first dead heat for first place in the history of California dog racing was recorded at Baden Kennel Club, Saturday night of last week when Irish Blarney and Trudy hit the finish line at exactly the same moment.

In more than 15,000 greyhound races which have been run in this state, no dead heat was ever announced prior to the installation of the Baden Wonder Photo-Finish Camera at the South San Francisco track this season.

The dead heat for first place occurred in the eighth event before the large Saturday night crowd, and the picture of the finish, posted on public display in the Baden grandstand, proved it beyond question.

Unquestionably the most important development in dog racing in the past decade, the Baden Wonder Camera is attracting nation-wide attention among enthusiasts for the "Sport of Queens."

The device, operating under artificial light and under difficulties which make photo finishes for horse racing comparatively easy, produces pictures which equal, if they do not excel, the photographic results obtained on the bangtails.

Flyers Break All Records With 6700 Mile Hop

Establishing a new world's record for non-stop distance flight, three soviet aviators were forced down in San Jacinto, Cal., Wednesday, with a leaking gas tank, after traveling 6700 miles in less than 62 hours. The trio took off from Moscow at 4:22 p. m. (P. S. T.), July 11 and landed in southern California 6:30 a. m.,

July 14. They were forced to land in a pasture because they had been unable to land at Los Angeles and San Diego because of fog. The fliers were taken to U. S. Army quarters at March Field, where they bathed and were given breakfast. Photo shows Pilot Mikhail M. Gromov, Navigator C. A. Danilin and Co-pilot Andrei Yumachev.

Redding Regatta Week End Event

Large numbers of motorists interested in aquatic sports will travel to Redding over the week end for the annual Lake Redding Regatta, to be held Saturday and Sunday (July 17-18). Many inquiries from motorists planning to attend the regatta have been reported.

Speedboat skippers will provide spectacular competition for an array of awards at the regatta. Elaborate plans for the two-day water carnival are being completed by the sponsors of the event, the Redding Junior Chamber of Commerce.

A parade and aquatic features in the new municipal river front swimming pool will be held on the opening day, with fireworks and the usual regatta dance in the evening. Boat races will take place Sunday, featuring some of the fastest power craft on the Pacific Coast.

MYSTIC NIGHT PROWLER ENTERS LOCAL SCHOOL

Broken Door, Shattered Glass Is Extent Of Damage

It seems that a mysterious prowler took the undue liberty of breaking into the Brisbane Grammar School storeroom on the evening of July 5, between the hours of 7 and 11. Although no considerable damage was attempted, except for a broken door and shattered glass, our mysterious intruder evidently must have held some motive for his strangely curious actions. Probably he may have wished to attend a session on woodcraft in night school but it is my belief that he found the teacher unsociable, and not exactly on speaking terms with her class, at that particular time.

Mrs. Ethel Jonas, clerk of the Board of School Trustees, took immediate action in summoning Constable Malone of Redwood City, who quickly investigated. It is the opinion of Constable Malone that the intruder could have been none other than a man of considerable strength to break through a strongly bolted door in such a manner as was accomplished. A child could have broken the glass and entered it if so had a mind to, but no child battered a door like that. Maybe it was an overgrown child?

Vagabond Sketches by DON AMES

NEW WAR IN ASIA—While Japanese troops filtered through China's great wall, according to the Hearst daily press, the first Chinese Route Army was dispatched northward to meet the invaders.

There can be only one cause of hostilities between China and Japan, and that is Imperial Nippon's project of expansion. True, they claim the Chinese have insulted them; but if the United States were to go to war each time some foreign power sent an insulting epistle during the past few years there wouldn't be enough men or women alive today to provide for the nation's needs. Yet the trouble may not be as bad as Mr. Hearst would have it.

SHORT STORY—John Montague, Hollywood golf star, was recently arrested by Los Angeles police for an alleged robbery of seven years ago.

ESCAPED INMATE FROM AGNEW IS CAPTURED HERE

Maniac Is Subdued And Held For Police

An escaped inmate from Agnew Prison Sanitarium was recaptured, Tuesday morning of this week, by one of our local residents, Mr. Richards, owner of the Brisbane Rapid Transit Service bus line.

It seems that said inmate insisted on sleeping in front of Mr. Richards' bus, which was at that time parked at the San Francisco-San Mateo County line. Upon being politely asked to move, he deliberately walked over and parked himself in the middle of the Bayshore highway, much to the disgust of passing motorists. That proved a little too much for Mr. Richards, who immediately ran out and dragged the "nitwit" to the safety of a nearby sidewalk, where he told said doodlebug to stay put. But this seemed only to enrage the person to a frenzied state of throwing himself at Mr. Richards, who in turn quickly countered with a body slam against a nearby building.

After beating the crazed person into submission, Mr. Richards quickly phoned the police, who came and took charge of the situation, which already was well in hand.

Judge W. H. Clay Unites In Marriage

On Saturday, July 10, City Councilman Armin R. Hermann of Bayshore City and Lallie Bell of the same place were happily united in the bond of wedlock at the office of Justice of the Peace Wade H. Clay.

Mayor John P. Lawson and wife acted as witnesses and stood with the couple while the ceremony was being performed.

After an extended honeymoon the couple will be at home to their many friends at 220 Rio Verde street, Bayshore City.

Ronconi Bequeaths Everything To Wife

New mystery shrouded the unsolved death of John Ronconi, 60, Colma rancher, whose body with the skull crushed was washed up at Salada Beach last Friday.

Sheriff James J. McGrath said Mrs. Marie Ronconi, the widow, found a black note book in the dead man's room in which had been written the words:

"I leave you everything, Marie."

Sheriff McGrath discounted any theory of suicide.

"The injuries from which Ronconi died could not possibly have been self inflicted," said the sheriff.

Ronconi is believed to have been murdered for $40 he carried with him after having been lured by his slayer to the beach.

Mrs. Markham is the only woman beside Miss Earhart who has flown solo across an ocean. Although she would not announce details of her venture, it was indicated she might fly to South Africa.

COUNTY FIESTA CARRIED OUT IN SPANISH DESIGN

Colorful Costumes To Be Worn By Merchants And Employees To Add Zest

Representative merchants of Daly City will join with merchants throughout the county in celebration of the San Mateo County Floral Fiesta by wearing, and having employees wear, festive garb to suit the occasion.

Meeting with merchants from all sections of the county last week, local trade leaders discussed with Fiesta Commission President Bruce Gibson and Manager Chester Lipman their ideas of what will be the proper garb to wear during the festivities from September 23 to 26.

It was decided that men at all public business houses should wear sombreros and colorful shirts, reminiscent of the days of the Spanish dons, women wearing Spanish shawls and scarfs. The plan, in keeping with the Spanish theme of the Fiesta, will brighten the county much the same as San Francisco was brightened by the wearing of such garb during the gate bridge opening festival.

One of the highlights of the Fiesta this year will be the domestic science exhibit, being arranged by Max

RIO VISTA BASS DERBY IS TO BE HELD OCTOBER 10

Expect Entrants From Large Number Of States—
Will Award Prizes

The Rio Vista Chamber of Commerce Committee to handle the Fifth Annual Striped Bass Derby has set the date for that event for Sunday October 10.

This Bass Derby will be conducted on the same lines as the previous derbies have been. Splendid prizes will be awarded to those who catch the largest fish on Derby Day. All these prizes will be worth entry in the competition, all that is required being the applicant possess a California fishing license and that he sign the entry cards.

The committee is making splendid progress in the selection of prizes and will soon announce the prize list and other details of the contest.

The Rio Vista Bass Derby is the original and is the only one run purely as a civic enterprise with no entrance fee or charges of any description for the contestants.

In the Derby held in 1936 there were entrants from more than 200 California cities; also from New York, Texas, Nevada and other states. Approximately 6500 registered for the sport on Derby Day.

NOTED RUNNERS TO SHOW SPEED AT TANFORAN

Many Large Eastern Stables

J. W. Marchbank, executive director of Tanforan, has announced many of the important racing establishments now at the big tracks in the East will come west for his fall meeting.

Among the noted strings expected for the twenty-five day session are the Milky Way Farm Stable, the Woolford Stock Farm Stable of T. C. Worden, the Millsdale Stable of Antone Pelleteri and others equally well known.

Julius Reeder, who is representing Tanforan in the East, stated in a wire that nearly all of the large bands that race at Santa Anita in the winter are planning to be at Tanforan for the opening on Tuesday, November 16, and will remain there until Satur-

Hugh Bradley Says:

Dugan Claims Yanks Are in Third League but Picks 1928 Club

JOE DUGAN—Jumping Joe who now presides over a Gotham hot spot with the same zeal he once devoted to the Yankee Stadium hot corner—started this. Having returned from a Sabbath visit to his old playgrounds, having inspected the cash register and having set up a few on the house, he was talking about the third major league.

"Greatest team around nowadays," he was saying. "Sure, those Tigers are good but what happens when the checks are down? Those Yankees just romp home with the marbles, don't they? Sure they do and they'll continue doing it all season. They'll win all by themselves. There's nobody like them. They're tops. They're a whole league to themselves. There's no other organization even close to them."

A timid customer edged a pound note upon the mahogany. He obtained the same prompt service which it was Mr. Dugan's pleasure to provide ten years ago when the lower end of the batting order was up and a rally was needed in the ninth. Then Mr. Dugan continued.

"Yessir," he said. "They're that third major league folks gossip about now and then. Where they're going to get opposition from is more than I know."

Joe McCarthy

"Maybe," offered another customer, tossing a $10 bill down the middle, "they could choose up sides and play games among themselves."

Mr. Dugan took care of the bill and the suggestion with the same aplomb that used to distinguish him when the bases were loaded and a line drive came whizzing over the third sack.

"Yeah, maybe," he agreed. "Or, maybe they could take the pick of the league and let them play the Yankees for a while. That might help for a couple of weeks anyhow. Some of those all-star outfits go pretty good."

The reporter had dropped into the Dugan emporium for some inspiration concerning a piece that is done by all baseball scribes every year.

This epic piece always starts out with the information that it is baseball custom for the team that is leading in July to continue in the same spot up to World Series time. Then, if the scribe is such a ceaseless searcher after innovations as is your present correspondent, he tries to find some iconoclast who can be quoted as saying the dope is the bunk during the current campaign.

Now, although he had once known Mr. Dugan as a very independent thinker, the reporter knew that he had come to the wrong spot. Such views as those expressed about the Yankees are merely those of a few million other discerning citizens. And, even if he would have liked to know what is due to happen in that entertaining feud being staged by the Giants, Cards, Cubs and Pirates, the reporter hesitated to intrude the name of a rival organization into the talk again. Then he had a happy thought.

"By the way," he asked. "You played on some pretty sweet Yankee teams yourself. What do you think would happen if time could be arranged so that Ruth, Meusel and the rest of you ancients could be stacked up against this present outfit of Yankee paragon?"

"Well," said Mr. Dugan. "That would have been power against power and good defense against good defense. The way I figure it is that pitching such as Hoyt and Pennock and those others used to give us would have enabled us to have an edge over this year's Yankees but—"

"Joseph," interrupted the reporter. "I see a picture of the 1928 Yankees in back of the bar there. Take a look at it yourself and quit stalling."

Mr. Dugan looked fondly at the Meusels, Ruths, Hoyts, younger Gehrigs and the rest.

"Why," he said then. "I guess you're right. These present Yankees may be a whole league to themselves, but we coulda licked 'em easy."

Freddie Lindstrom and Bill Terry will confer with the probable result being that the once great Giant soon will be playing the Jersey City outfield and assisting Travis Jackson with managerial problems.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

NOTRE DAME's football team probably will be better next fall than in 1936. More experience and weight and just as much speed. Lynn Waldorf says he needs a fullback, two tackles and a center at Northwestern, but smiles when he says it. . . . Purdue will have a swell first eleven but, as usual, will lack reserves. . . . Minnesota is likely to be close to tops again. . . . There will be no considerable improvement at Wisconsin. Friends say that is because Harry Stuhldreher spends too much time recruiting players from far-off parts and neglects the material around home. . . . There also is a rap in for Michigan, where another Notre Dame alumnus holds forth as Harry Kipke's chief assistant. The boys insist Hunk Anderson is great at teaching individual line play but is unable to impart the principles of teamwork.

Hype Igoe, the boxing writer, dotes upon using lead pencils instead of a typewriter and insists upon traveling in upper berths. . . . Jack Dempsey says a big heavyweight fight in New York is worth $40,000 extra money (ten G's a night for four nights) to his restaurant. . . . Now that Chicago has had its turn at handling a major sports event Philadelphia and Baltimore no longer can claim first place in the traffic messing league. . . . Solly Seaman, the former lightweight, is one of the best judges of weight in the fight business. A week before the Braddock-Louis affair he guessed the ringside weight of each man within a half a pound. . . . Would anybody mind my calling attention to the fact that three months ago this space predicted the net gate for the Louis-Braddock fight would be less than $600,000? . . . Pacific Coast league writers are touting Sacramento's kid shortstop, Joe Orenge, as the best big-time prospect in their circuit. . . . Talk about crowds here—Minneapolis hotels already are sold out for the Notre Dame-Minnesota football game that won't be played until next fall.

Archie San Romani is sure he will crack that mile record before the summer is out. Glenn Cunningham agrees with him, as does Don Lash, who recently had his appendix sliced out. . . . Garry Le Van is achieving quick success as a Chicago business man. The once slim hipped quarterback must have gained at least 30 pounds since those 1935 days when he was leading Princeton's Tigers to an unbeaten football season. . . . George Moorhouse, who captained the U. S. F. A. eleven against Charlton Athletic at the Polo Grounds recently, performed for the famous Bootle St. James Team and was a schoolboy international star long before he decided to transfer his soccer talents to the United States.

The favorite sport of Ralph Guldahl, National Open golf champion, is football. . . . Sylvia Annenberg, the very pretty lady golfer, is preparing for her third new name. . . . Titanic Thompson, the eminent Southwestern plunger, started Ky Laffoon on the way to golfing glory. Titanic, who used to astound Broadway with his own golf feats before he decided to remain away from the hot spots more or less permanently, staked Ky to expense money for his early tournament travels. . . . The first golf ball ever owned by Walter Hagen was given to him by a Rochester pro. Walter promptly knocked the thing through a window of his father's farmhouse. Just as promptly the elder Hagen retired him from the game for a year.

Walter Hagen's favorite beverage now, according to Joe Kirkwood, who is touring the world with him, is barley water. Once before Hagen departed from his traditional liquid diet. That was when he drank milk as a press agent stunt. . . . Henry Picard once was the victim of a nervous breakdown, something rare in pro golf ranks. It Walter Hagen came because the serious minded lad spent thirteen hours a day on the lesson tea at Charleston. . . . Gene Sarazen plans a trip to the Orient late this year and hopes to enter the Japanese Open.

There are more actual competitors in dog shows than in any other sport. A large show such as the Morris and Essex may have as many as 3,000 competitors; small shows seldom drop below 100, the average is 350 and there are more large shows than small ones.

Although he thought he had retired from public life years ago when he served as a member of the state assembly his friends are insisting that Sol Strauss, the eminent 20th Century Sporting Club attorney, should let his name be presented the next time there is a vacant judgeship.

Tazio Nuvolari, the little Italian, once won a race while driving with his thigh in a plaster cast. Nuvolari, generally rated as the greatest daredevil of them all, now chides his younger teammates for taking unnecessary chances. "You are young and have a long time to live," he told Achilles Varzi recently. "You should not be reckless. I have lived a long time. I can take chances."

Nuvolari is in his early forties. He used to carry a copy of his will in his pocket whenever he raced.

SOMEONE'S PICKING YOUR POCKET!

It's the Hidden Tax Collector—He Respects Not Even the Real Necessities of Life, and How He Wallops Your Budget!

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

DO YOU make $150 a month? If you do, you'll be interested—and perhaps a little surprised—to learn that the tax collector picks your pocket to the tune of one-eighth of your income. He sneaks enough from the family wallet in two years to buy a new car.

Yes, he picks your pocket. For this "take"—which amounts to 12.7 cents out of every dollar—represents indirect, or "hidden," taxes. They're not like your income tax or personal property tax or a state retail sales tax, for you rarely know when you have to "shell out" for them. They're concealed in the price of the goods and services you buy, even the bare necessities of life such as bread and shoes. "Death and taxes are inevitable"—and all too often invisible.

These are only a few of many illuminating revelations to come out of a survey just completed by the Family Economics bureau of the Northwestern National Life Insurance company, of Minneapolis. The study was started in November, 1935. Records of 206 concerns—public utilities, insurance companies, manufacturers, jobbers and retailers—were investigated "in an effort to measure as accurately as possible the proportion of prices paid by the consumer for which taxes—federal, state and local—are responsible."

All levies which would not normally be included in the cost of goods and services sold were omitted in the calculations which followed from the original producer to the retailer. The principal taxes entering into the picture then were: Farm and urban realty taxes, personal property and general property taxes of business concerns, excise taxes, licenses, fees and franchises, moneys and credits taxes, gasoline and oil taxes on motor truck deliveries, import duties and the tax element in freight costs involved in the various steps of distribution.

Taxes Are Passed On.

To understand the figures it is necessary to understand how some of these indirect taxes work. "In the case of a retailer who owns the building which houses his store," says the report, "real estate taxes are shown on his books as an item of overhead, and their participation in the 'makeup' which he must add to his cost prices can be measured with considerable certainty."

However, if he rents his store building, the taxes on the building are necessarily contained in the rental paid, and are just as surely a portion of his overhead expense, even though concealed in the entry "rent."

In the wholesale price which the retailer pays for his merchandise is necessarily contained an overhead element consisting of the real estate taxes on the building occupied by the wholesaler, and just as necessarily, taxes on the factory which produced the goods contribute a portion of the price charged the jobber by the manufacturer.

"This study," the report continued, "has undertaken to include in the figures finally attained the principal elements affecting ultimate prices charged, whether actually listed as 'taxes' on the books of the business, or contained as a portion of some other entry."

Social security taxes were not considered, "because they are in a sense deposits for future withdrawal." Gasoline taxes were computed, because gasoline and oil are subject to local taxes in all 48 states and the District of Columbia, in addition to the federal levy.

Tax-Grabber Is Killjoy.

The researchers estimated that the average worker's family with an income of $150 a month spends $43.50 for food; of this 7.1 per cent, or $3.09, goes to the hidden tax collector. Of the $30 spent for shelter, hidden taxes take more than a quarter, $7.59. They account for 8 per cent of the $16 clothing bill, or $1.28. Fuel and light cost $11, but 9.5 per cent of this, or $1.05, represents indirect taxes.

The tax-grabber really cuts into the family's enjoyment of life. The cost of an average used car, including license, and gas and oil sales tax, is $14.50 a month; hidden taxes get 20.1 per cent—$2.91. And the $3.00 the $150-a-month family can set aside for recreation includes 30 cents for the tax-grabber, who seldom shows his face.

Insurance bears a lighter tax load. Of the $5.00 spent monthly for that protection, only 2.6 per cent, or 13 cents, falls into the hidden tax barrel. Sundries and miscellaneous items—toothpaste, jewelry, tobacco, etc.—which cost $27 a month are burdened with taxes amounting to 10.2 per cent, or $2.75.

The hidden taxes which eat away at an $80 monthly income are slightly less in proportion, since it is assumed that such an income does not ordinarily permit the ownership or operation of an automobile.

What the salesman doesn't always tell you: The cost of a used car and its operation include hidden taxes amounting to 20.1 per cent. If it were a new car, the figure would be 21.4 per cent.

Here's the way the tax collector fares with that one:

Cost Per Month	% of Taxes Amount Found in Cost	Tax in Dollars
Food $27.00	7.1	$1.92
Shelter 18.00	25.3	4.55
Clothing 9.00	8.0	.72
Fuel and Light 6.00	9.5	.57
Transportation (Streetcar) 4.00	11.0	.44
Recreation 2.00	10.0	.20
Insurance 2.00	2.6	.05
Sundries & Miscellaneous 12.00	10.2	1.22
Total $80.00	Av. 12.0	$9.67
Annually $960.00	12.0	$116.04

Taxes on $200 Income.

There is a slight difference in the proportion of hidden taxes to the spending of a family with an income of $200 a month. This is again accounted for by the automobile, as shown:

Cost Per Month	% of Taxes Found in Cost	Tax in Dollars
Food $48.00	7.1	$3.41
Shelter 38.00	25.3	9.61
Clothing 22.00	8.0	1.76
Fuel and Light 14.00	9.5	1.33
Transportation (Auto) 20.00	21.4	4.28
bought new	6.00	.60
Recreation 5.00	10.0	.50
Savings 5.00	2.6	.13
Insurance 12.00	2.6	.31
Sundries & Miscellaneous 35.00	10.2	3.57
Total $200.00	Av. 12.4	$24.87
Annually $2,400.00	12.4	$298.44

*Also includes license, and gas and oil sales taxes.

Tax ratio to total time and demand deposits in banks studied was 2 per cent. However, the effect of this tax would obviously not be to increase the savings depositor's outlay, but could only affect him by reducing the interest yield on his savings. The moneys and credits taxes levied by many states are paid directly by depositors, with wide variation in rates and in minimum exemptions.

"After arriving at general tax ratios for the various lines of goods and products represented by the concerns studied," says the report, "further studies were made of individual products in certain lines—in the case of food products, bread, pork, beef, sugar etc. The results of these studies gave an additional series of checks though, necessarily, individual items varied rather widely in some cases from the tax proportions arrived at for the general group of goods."

You'll never recognize 'em, madame, but hidden taxes will account for 8 per cent of what you pay for that dress!

dividual products in certain lines—in the case of food products, bread, pork, beef, sugar etc. The results of these studies gave an additional series of checks though, necessarily, individual items varied rather widely in some cases from the tax proportions arrived at for the general group of goods."

The loaf of bread for which you pay a dime bears in its cost .64 of a cent in hidden taxes, the study disclosed. Beef prices contain indirect taxes amounting to 8.14 per cent; pork prices, 8.04 per cent. A five-pound bag of sugar costs a nickel more than it would if there were no indirect taxes concealed in it.

Rent Boosted by Taxes.

If the man of the house buys a suit of clothes for $25, a portion of that amounting to $2.62 helps clothe the tax collector. If the lady spends $5.00 for a pair of shoes, she will never be happy to learn that she could have bought them for $4.58.

were it not for the inevitable taxes.

The great proportion of indirect taxes to residential rental costs was investigated with the aid of real estate companies in 48 cities; records on representative local properties were taken at random from their files.

A total of 7,964 single and multiple family dwelling units were covered by the final averages. These revealed that taxes represented 28 per cent of the current rental rate of the one-family dwellings studied; 19.2 per cent of the rental rates of the duplexes and 13.6 per cent of the rental rates of the apartments.

"The notably lower ratio of taxes to apartment dwellings is due," says the report, "first to the fact that a portion of the apartment rental dollar represents fuel, water, rent, janitor service, etc.; second floor space is more intensively occupied in apartment buildings, and third, apartment rental rates have in general recovered somewhat faster than house rental rates. In many communities, however, tax rates are mounting approximately as fast as rental rates are recovering."

Average Motorist Taxed $48.

The automobile today has passed the stage where it may be classified as altogether a luxury. But it's a free luxury for the tax-grabber; in fact it's soft picking for him. Motorists paid an average of $48 apiece in taxes, direct and indirect, contributing a total of $1,349,000,000 or 10½ per cent of the nation's entire tax revenues during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1937, according to the study.

In a detailed advance estimate, the report sets total federal, state and local tax collections at $12,872,000,000 for the fiscal year just ended. General property taxes contribute $4,718,000,000, and income taxes—federal, state, and local—$2,629,000,000 according to the study, with the owners of twenty-eight million motor vehicles ranking a strong third as a source of revenue.

Gasoline and oil taxes, totaling $884,000,000, make up the bulk of motorists' current tax contribution. Combined federal and state taxes on gasoline average slightly over five cents per gallon, for the country as a whole.

The purchaser of a new low-priced car pays $101 in taxes, direct and indirect, during his first year of ownership, according to the study.

He pays approximately $64 in taxes as a part of the original purchase price, the study shows. This figure includes $3.30 estimated tax content in the freight costs, $14.41 in excise taxes, and numerous direct and indirect taxes which accumulate in material and production costs to an estimated amount of $46.10.

Computations Conservative.

If the motorist operates his car 7,200 miles a season, his gasoline and oil sales taxes will total approximately $23; with an average cost for his new car license of $14.50, a motorist thus contributes some $101.50 in taxes during his first year of ownership.

If, however, the $64 of taxes contained in the original purchase price is averaged down to an annual depreciation basis of $10.42, assuming resale or trade-in at the end of the third year for $350, the motorist's average tax cost becomes $48.14 annually for the three years, the study shows. This figure is computed on the very conservative operating basis of 7,200 miles per season, the report points out.

The owner of a used car in its fourth to seventh year of service contributes an average of $35 annually in taxes, the study shows, if he operates his car a modest 6,000 miles per season.

The murder took place on the Tahoe-Ukiah Highway near Nevada City, when Meyer sought to protect his fiancée, Miss Gwendolyn Coats, from a criminal attack Monte was accused of being the man who fired the shot that killed Meyers.

More Workers Under Plan

Sacramento—Approximately 300,000 California workers will be brought for the first time under the State unemployment insurance program as a result of new legislation signed by Governor Frank F. Merriam. Officials of the State unemployment reserves commission have estimated that number of employees will be added to the 1,300,000 now covered by reason of the legal revisions. The chief bill in a series of Unemployment Reserves Act amendments extends the law to all employers hiring four or more workers, instead of eight or more as at present. The measure will go into effect January 1, 1938. The commission said contributions will be received from some 70,000 employers and approximately 1,600,000 employees.

To Safeguard Condors

Bakersfield—For the protection of California condors, largest of western birds and considered a vanishing species, A. A. Nashbouden, supervisor of Los Angeles National Forest, has announced that a part of the forest has been closed. Nashbouden, pointing out that the forest is the home of the greatest number of these mammoth birds, declared forest regulations have closed the region around upper Siquoc Creek, and a part of Siquoc Creek, comprising approximately 1200 acres. "The value of this closure is self-evident and has the unanimous support of conservation minded public and leading ornithological societies," the forest official said. "No permits to enter will be issued except for strictly scientific purposes and then only in most exceptional cases."

Counties Boost Revenues

Sacramento — State Controller Harry B. Riley has announced an increase of more than $3,000,000 in State revenues as a result of the semi-annual settlements of the county treasurers with the State government. Inheritance taxes account for more than $2,500,000 of the total, which represents collections made for the State by several counties. The Los Angeles County settlement, $1,224,737, was by far the largest. Inheritance taxes in the State at large were approximately $4,000 greater than during the corresponding period of last year. Controller Riley itemized the settlement as follows: Estates of deceased persons, $13,422.44; inheritance taxes, $2,529,230.06; property taxes, $754.94; correctional school collections, $115,487.02; settlements on homes for feeble minded, $350,923.89; settlements on State hospitals, etc., $21,018.40. Total, $3,030,836.75.

Speed Margin Allowed

Sacramento—Although the State speed limit on highways is forty-five miles an hour, Chief E. Raymond Cato of the California Highway Patrol instructed his officers recently to allow motorists an additional five miles an hour for a "possible error in speed check." The chief issued his order in a determined drive against the rising tide of traffic deaths and accidents and he gave instructions to tighten up on speeders and reckless drivers. The order to permit motorists an additional five miles an hour, the chief said, will assure both the courts before whom offenders are taken and the motoring public "that our sole purpose is to stop speeding and reckless driving." Cato cited that for the first four months of 1937 there were 11,755 traffic accidents in California, an increase of 1056 over the same period a year ago. Deaths for the same period totaled 965 for 1937, an increase of seventy-nine over 1936, while 15,722 persons were injured in four months this year, an increase of 1573 for the same time in 1936.

Given State Post

Bakersfield—Appointed field representative of the State library system, John D. Henderson, Kern County librarian, will assume his new post August 1, it has been announced.

New Court Plan

San Diego—San Diego's five municipal courts have begun functioning, replacing four county township courts and police court. The municipal court system was voted by the people at the last election.

PETER RABBIT ASKS AFTER OLD FRIENDS

NO SOONER had Winsome Bluebird finished telling how Ol' Mistah Buzzard warms his toes on the chimneys of the houses in the far-away South than Peter Rabbit was full of questions about other friends who had been spending the long winter in the land of sunshine.

"Where is Little Friend the Song Sparrow?" he asked eagerly.

"Little Friend of All is not very far away," he replied. "In fact, I think he will be here in a few days, Peter. You see, Little Friend loves the Green Meadows and the Smiling Pool so much that he cannot bear to go any farther away than he has to. I guess he feels just as I do. And so he doesn't go way down South as some do, but just far enough to be comfortable and to be sure that he will be able to get enough to eat. I heard him singing only a few days ago, and he said to tell his friends up here that he is on his way."

"My, but I'll be glad to hear him again," said Peter with a sigh. "Somehow I always feel better as ever, and he really is very well and in splendid spirits, considering the hard time he has had ever since he left here."

"What do you mean? Doesn't Cheerful find enough to eat down South?" demanded Peter, pricking up his long ears.

"Plenty, plenty!" replied Winsome Bluebird. "It's the way people treat him down there. Men and boys are altogether too fond of Cheerful."

Peter looked up quickly to see if Winsome was joking, but he didn't seem to be. Indeed, he seemed to have a kind of sorrowful look, as if thinking of the hard time Cheerful Robin had had made him feel bad. "If they are so fond of him I should think that Cheerful would have the best kind of a time," said Peter.

"They are fond of him in the wrong way," replied Winsome sadly. "They are fond of him to eat, and Cheerful has to be watching out all the time for dreadful guns. I wish he had come along up with me. I won't feel quite easy until I see him. Don't you think guns are dreadful things, Peter Rabbit?"

"Yes, indeed! The most dreadful things in all the world," replied Peter promptly. "But I didn't suppose that Cheerful Robin ever had anything to fear from them. I don't see what he goes down South for, if that is the way they treat him."

"He has to get enough to eat," replied Winsome Bluebird, "just as I do. If it wasn't for that we wouldn't either of us go, because you know we love the Green Meadows and the Smiling Pool and the Old Orchard so. Now, I have sat here gossiping with you just as long as I can. I must be spreading the glad news that Mistress Spring is coming."

"I'll help you," said Peter happily, and made ready to start right away for the Green Forest.

FIRST-AID TO AILING HOUSE

SHINGLE STAINS

FOR wood shingles it is generally considered advisable to use stain rather than a paint. With the exposed surface sealed by paint, moisture does not dry out readily, and rotting of the under side of the shingles is likely to take place. Stain penetrates the shingle, and does not interfere with the drying out of moisture.

New shingles should be dipped in stain before being laid, to cover all surfaces. The restaining of an old roof must, of course, be with a brush or spray.

Shingle stain can be bought in a variety of colors. However, excellent shingle stains can be made at home. The following formula can be relied on, and is easily prepared—4 gallons raw linseed oil, 2 gallons coal tar cresote oil, 1 gallon Japan drier. This stain is clean and dark. If color is wanted, color-in-oil should be mixed with linseed oil to the consistency of paint; 2 gallons of the mixture should be used with the foregoing for a stain to be brushed on.

Coal tar cresote oil has a preservative effect and checks rotting. Its use in a shingle stain is always advisable. Its color is dark, however, and it cannot be used for stains of light tone.

A good treatment for shingles and also for dried-out and weather beaten wood is a mixture of 2 parts of raw linseed oil and 1 part of turpentine, to be applied liberally. The effect of the turpentine is to draw the linseed oil deeply into the wood. This has but a slight darkening effect. When color is desired, color-in-oil can be added.

In dipping new shingles before laying, a small barrel or other container is filled with stain, and the shingles are dipped into it, butt-end first, for three-quarters of their length. They are then thrown in a

GRAPHIC GOLF

By BEST BALL

LENGTHEN THE BACKSWING

ONE of the most flagrant faults of the average golfer is jerky, hurried hitting. This is most apparent on the short shots around the green where the player, apprehensive over the success of this shot hits down hurriedly and raises his head in the same motion to see where the ball is going. There is not quite the same anxiety displayed on the longer shots but the tendency to stroke hurriedly is there none the less.

As a rule it is the result of lack of confidence in the actual golf stroke. Most players like to get the job of stroking over with as soon as possible once they have started the motion. For them the long, gradually accelerated back and downstrokes are fraught with dangers and invite errors of every description. The real trouble is largely mental and it is through this channel that the fault must be combated. One method of cure suggested by Billie Burke, the former Open champion, is to teach the golfer to force his stroke back further in the backswing than he is inclined to do. This will take a little will power at first but, once the ice is broken, the player will find it increasingly easier to increase the width of the backswing arc. As a result he can bring the clubhead down very slowly, increasing the momentum gradually and make the stroke a swing instead of sharp hit.

SOME BETTER CAUSE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

SOME men work hard to fill with hate
The hearts of some imagined "class,"
And others labor until late
To pour for youth the brimming glass.
And so to many a plot and plan
Men give their misdirected skill,
Forget the brotherhood of man
And work but work their brother ill.

Work is a virtue when it's done
To help and not to hurt mankind;
Work is no virtue if the sun
Shall leave a poorer world behind.
The glory of a busy hand
Is not a busy hand alone;
It must be serving God and land,
For usefulness it must be known.

A web I saw a spider spin,
A thing of beauty and of skill,
And yet it hoped to lure within
Another insect it might kill.
Thus all its splendor was destroyed,
This thing of rainbow-tinted gauze.
I wish it might have been employed,
Such labor, in some better cause.

THE LANGUAGE OF YOUR HAND

By Leicester K. Davis

© Public Ledger, Inc.

IN YOUR study of hands you will, of course, find some in which there are discouraging indications that, from a rapid analysis, may lead you to render at least a mental verdict of creative failure. Be careful in reaching such a conclusion, for all the elements of the hand may not corroborate this indication in the third finger.

The third finger now to be analyzed is often found without compensations elsewhere in the hand, in which case it well deserves its name.

The Futile Finger of Brilliance.

You will quickly recognize this type by its shortness, smoothness and straightness. With the fingers pressed together, its tip is always found much below that of the second finger. In many instances, the tip will be even with that of the fourth finger. With the hand extended wide, a third finger of this kind is usually spaced evenly between the second and fourth fingers, although it may be nearer the second finger than the fourth. The general formation of this finger is rather pegshaped, with often a decided taper at the nail tip, which is slightly rounded. The nail is somewhat oval in shape and well set. Under backward pressure such a finger is found to be moderately flexible but without resilient quality.

You may place the possessor of this type of third finger as one in whom there is very little stirring of creative urge, and whose hope for successful self-expression must be pinned on the objective rather than the subjective things of life.

loose pile for drying. There are advantages in buying shingles ready-stained. In the first place, the shingles are inspected one by one before dipping, and imperfect ones are thrown aside. Dipping is under pressure, so that the stain is forced into the wood much more deeply than is possible with dipping by hand. Also the colors are more permanent and less likely to fade.

Multi-colored belting ribbon is doubly pleated and set together with plain strips of black in this new treatment of the "off-the-face" fez. The colors are coral, green, cinnamon and mustard. The clips are pale, dull gold, set with diamonds.

Fashions at Vacationland

HURRAY for dear old Johnnie Two-Weeks! He's recently given the nod to these three sweet young laborers and now they're off reaping the rewards. Yes, they're vacationing — and how! But, of course, Sew-Your-Own had them dressed right up to the hilt. There was a luscious array of sports togs, including a trig sun 'n' fun suit, all occasion dresses, and charmingly young informal dinner frocks, and — well, just about everything a girl could wear.

Chic in Chiffon.

Miss M., picturesque blonde, above, left, knows what glamour is and how to have it. That's why she chose this softly feminine frock with its swirling skirt and delicately slim waist. You should see her at an evening in the outdoor terrace. She's a picture in black gossamer chiffon trimmed with white satin. And to think, she made it all herself!

Cunning in Cotton.

Miss B., above, center, and center of attraction at the Surf club, has everything under perfect control as she strolls along the boardwalk. With not a care in her pretty head, and lots of streamlining in her natty little sports dress, she walks with confidence and pride. She has a clever way of achieving variety by switching scarfs and belts. In fact, she's so clever she made this little number, button holes and all, in one day without a hitch.

Cool for Sports.

Miss Y., the sports enthusiast at the right, says that her three piece ensemble is so very, very and practical she wears it almost to the exclusion of her other frocks. Her idea is to soak up as much sunshine as possible, and that's pretty easy to do when she wears the halter and shorts sans dress. Take a tip from Miss Y. Make your version of this ensemble in duplicate for all summer wear. Have one in seersucker, the other in acetate.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1241 is for sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 44 bust). Size 16 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39 inch material plus 1 1/2 yards of ribbon, and 3 yards of trimming.

Pattern 1316 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 38 bust). Size 14 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1335 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 38 bust). Size 14 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material for the dress and shorts, and 1 yard for the topper. The dress alone requires 3 1/2 yards.

Idea for Tunnels

Ancient Egyptians, observing streams enter one side of a hill and come out the other, got the idea for tunnels. They built them into tombs. Builders after them bored tunnels to carry or drain water. One people, the Babylonians, more daring than the rest, tunneled beneath the Euphrates river. Thus began the story, according to a correspondent in the Washington Post, of the most fascinating and dangerous of all tunneling operations, subaqueous—underwater.

ROCKAWAY BEACH PEDRO VALLEY

The formal opening of the new Rees place is scheduled for an early date, when invitations are planned to be sent to Harry's and Irene's many friends and patrons. An informal preview was staged, Saturday night of last week, when visitors drove down from San Francisco and paid a surprise call. Impatient for the long delayed event, about 75 people had a merry time, and when Irene came home from work she was amazed to see the place in full swing, with the bar and dance floor all lit up—likewise the jolly crowd. The affair kept going until 4 a. m. and at 5 it started all over again, for the Sunday entertainment. A center of attraction on Saturday night was the Conroy burro, "Jinny," who strolled in through the quaint adobe entrance and made himself at home. Only a few of the local residents were in on the impromptu affair, so a number of the town's best were absent. This omission will be remedied, however. When the formal opening is arranged invitations well into a thousand will be sent out by Harry and Irene for their hosts of friends.

The Hector Martins have returned from their vacation trip to the red-wood forests of northern California. They brought back with them the desert bleached skull of a moose, which now adorns a corner of the bar at the Rees Spanish road house.

Grace Danmann's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Castillo, paid her a surprise visit, Saturday of last week, driving up from Riverside to Taft, where lives another daughter, Mrs. Benningsdorf. They plan to remain with the Danmanns a few days then to make visits to other members of their family.

The Jim Troglia dance hall at Rockaway, which has been for the past few months official headquarters for the Rockaway-Pedro highway workers, is now being moved across the road for alteration into a center for the products of the Coast-side Winery, which has outgrown its former location at the Troglia store.

One of the prettiest babies born in this locality is Patricia Jean Stuart, three weeks old daughter of Hugh ("Bud") and his wife Elma of Pedro. Here is, undoubtedly, a future coast-side belle, and her parents think she is just about all a baby should be, right now. Patricia Jean weighed six pounds at birth, June 21.

William Beeler and Mayor Jack Lawson dropped in at the Rees surprise party, Saturday night of last week, and Leo Harris declared that the event was just that much more enjoyable for their presence. This is such a good compliment that we can't resist passing it on.

Mrs. Carl Hubachek of San Francisco and her sturdy baby boy Joseph paid a visit to the Clyde Garners over the week end. Mrs. Hubachek is Anne Garner's "big sister," by the way, and small Joseph is her nephew.

Harold Spink of Pedro was the man who took the body of Miss Patsy Hughes from the sea, off Pedro Beach where it had drifted from Rockaway, last Sunday, after the girl had died of a heart attack while swimming. Spink was assisted by Barry Kendall and Bob Miley in Jim Stuart's fishing boat. The boys rowed out and, under Spink's direction, played a notable part in the gruesome errand.

Many of the road workers who have been staying at Rockaway for the past six months have moved away. They will work at Livermore.

Loline York, ten months old daughter of "Buck" York and wife, took her first step on Sunday and is now becoming an accomplished hiker. She is also demonstrating a fine line of porcelain, with four new teeth and more coming.

Mrs. Jennie Bicknell went across the bay on Monday. The Troglia store has added a new supply room with a grand new refrigerator.

Mrs. Chenoweth, esteemed resident of Rockaway and mother of Mrs. Coletha Bailey, celebrated her eighty-second birthday on Sunday of this week. There was a big celebration at the Bailey home, with a reunion of the family to start the new year off merrily. Mrs. Mhenoweth is alert, active in mind and body, and she is interested in all that's going on in the world of today. Recently she had her first permanent while on a visit to her grandson, Edgar, and his wife Pauline in San Diego. Among those present at the birthday dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Lombardi of Palo Alto, Pauline Bailey and Ted Bailey all grandchildren of Mrs. Chenoweth. The best good wishes to her, and many "happies" to come!

Mrs. Peter Haugaard and Mrs. George Lewis of Shelter Cove drove to Glen Ellen, last Tuesday, and brought back Claudia, the daughter of the former, who has been visiting her grandmother since school closed.

day, December 18, before shipping to southern California. Heretofore, most of the establishments have gone direct to Santa Anita.

The Milky Way Stable is owned by Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, who goes to the Saratoga sales each August and usually picks up some good colts. Her stable is famous from one country to the other for the class of its thoroughbreds. C-Note is the latest of the youngsters to be developed by Robert McGarvey, conditioner of the Milky Way gallopers. He is a gray colt by Royal Minstrel.

Ben Jones trains the Woolford Stock Farm horses. He was a familiar figure at Tanforan for a number of seasons, either training his own horses or those of others. He owned the stallion Seth, sons and daughters of which made racing history east and west.

The Millsdale Stable has been putting the gelding Infantry and others over in the best of company at Arlington Park, Chicago.

The big strings coming to Tanforan are expected to ship following the close at Saratoga and Hawthorne toward the end of August.

Nominations for the Tanforan Futurity of 1939 are being received at the office in Daly City. The entries close, Monday, August 16, of this year.

Operatic Program Given At Alcazar

On Monday, July 19, at the Alcazar Theater, the Federal Chorus and Orchestra with soloists under the direction of Giulio Silva, present an all-operative program. Overtures, arias, and choruses from the most popular of the operas should prove of real interest to music lovers.

Excerpts from the operas La Traviata, Rigoletto, Il Trovatore and Carmen will be featured. Carlos Jarquin, baritone, is scheduled to sing "Di Provenza" aria from La Traviata, and from Rigoletto will come the famous quartet, "La donna e mobile" will be sung by the popular tenor, Cecil Lausten.

From Il Trovatore the "Miserere" will be sung by Florence Ringo and Cecil Lausten; Blanche Hamilton Fox, contralto, will sing the "Anvil Song" assisted by the Chorus.

After the intermission, Carmen is given, from the Cigarette Girls Chorus through the second act including the Toreador Song, the third act with the famous Micaela aria, on to the big finale of march and chorus. Nona Campbell will sing the music allotted to Carmen, Lucy Day has the Micaela role and Frank Baken is the Toreador.

This concert has been in preparation for sometime and will be one of the high lights of the Federal Music Project summer season at the Alcazar. We wish to differentiate these concerts from the Symphony Series at the Veterans' Auditorium on alternating Tuesdays.

BEAUTY BUNDLES IN NEW PLAY

GRACE COOPER AT ALCAZAR

In "The Pursuit of Happiness" at the Alcazar Theater in San Francisco, plays the part of a young Connecticut woman during the Revolutionary period. During this period kindling was expensive and the custom of the day was to "bundle." Little is said of "bundling" in the school histories. The clergy of that day and for many years—up to 1804—conducted a campaign against the practice. "Bundling" consisted of tumbling into bedclothes to keep warm when the current swain called of an evening. The feather beds and thick comforts of that day were resorted to as a measure of economy to save the cost of kindling wood.

CASTLE REPLICA IS TO BE SHOWN WEEK OF JULY 26

Famous Doll House To Be Exhibited For Crippled
Children

The world tour of the famous Colleen Moore doll house, costing $435,000 and exhibited for the benefit of crippled children, will be shown in San Francisco, beginning July 26.

Mayor Rossi, who extended an official invitation to the motion picture star to exhibit the fairy castle in the city, this week received the following telegram of acceptance:

"Thank you ever so much for your cordial and official invitation to visit San Francisco with my doll house. I am delighted to accept and am now making plans to exhibit the fairy castle in your city beginning July 26. We hope for an attendance of more than 100,000 persons and I am happy that I will be able to be present."

The doll house, which is nine feet square and twelve feet high, has been exhibited in major cities throughout the United States. Net proceeds will go to establish agencies aiding crippled children. Within its towers and battlements are a series of rooms containing 2000 handcrafted furnishings. The castle, which took nine years to complete, is rich in gems and precious metals and is the product of 700 workmen, artists and craftsmen.

It was constructed by Miss Moore in gratitude for recovery from a serious early-life illness.

LAST DALTON BANDIT DIES

Emmett Dalton, 66, last survivor of the notorious Dalton gang that terrorized the Middle West in the early nineties, recently died in Los Angeles after a long illness. Dalton was shot 28 times and escaped lynching in a wild battle with officers at Coffeyville, Kan., October 5, 1892. His older brothers and Dick Broadwell and Bill Powers were shot to death in the fray.

Oil Use By Autos Exceeds Industries

Automobiles now use more lubricating oil than all the industrial machinery in the United States.

A recent survey by the American Petroleum Institute found that motor cars and trucks used 22,000,000 barrels of lubricating oil last year, while industry consumed slightly more than 20,000,000 barrels.

BOY SCOUTS IN GREAT JAMBOREE AT WASHINGTON.

Two British Columbia Members Pedal Four Thousand Miles To Attend

The editor and Mrs. Pitschke were visiting in Washington, D. C., while the early preparations were in progress for the spectacular Boy Scout Jamboree, recently, in full swing in our national capital. Hundreds of tents had already been erected for the gala event. From the height of the Washington monument the display of canvas abodes along the Potomac presented a gigantic picture.

Two bicycle scouts, Phillip La Fortune and Arthur Freeman of Victoria, British Columbia, pedaled their entire way to this tent city. They covered a distance of 3581 miles between the dates of April 23 and June 28.

The great camp, it is said, resembled an exposition with a diversity of attractions featuring, for example:

1—A Manhattan skyline, depicting the Empire State Building, erected by New York City Scouts.

2—A huge ax and other oversized camp equipment, displayed by Wisconsin Scouts as former possessions of the giant legendary lumberjack, Paul Bunyan.

3—A model of Virginia's famous Natural Bridge. Other Virginia Scouts decorated the tents they are to take to the world jamboree in Holland next month, with oil paintings depicting famous scenes in their state's history.

4—Palm groves with live alligators, laid out by Florida boys.

5—A Georgia cotton plantation.

6—A reproduction of Kentucky's Mammoth Cave.

7—A 12 foot tall reproduction of President Roosevelt's Hyde Park home, made by Scouts from Dutchess County, New York.

8—Indian villages with brightly colored teepees, and frontier towns of various types.

9—A 91 piece band from the New England States.

10—In one act, 82 scouts lit campfires by the flint and steel method in a period of two and a half minutes.

11—Formation of "a human flag," 140 feet long, composed entirely of scouts using their red-blue jamboree neckerchiefs and strips of white cloth. The flag forming was done in a period of two and one-half minutes.

Bombs and bugles heralded the start of the eleven day event, commencing June 30.

Boys, it is a sacred privilege to belong to an organization of this kind. Many of you are not always able to attend great reunions so far away, but if you are faithful to hte cause your turn will surely come. The uniform you wear stands for high ideals, and whether you happen to be wearing one or not, when occasion arises prove its noble demands upon you.

REVOLUTIONARY WAR ROMANCE NOW AT ALCAZAR

Old Custom Of Days Of Puritans Re-enacted In New Comedy

"The Pursuit of Happiness," the Langners' romantic comedy of the Revolutionary War days which is now playing at the Alcazar Theater, is based in most instances on facts of history.

That the art of "bundling" as practiced by the Puritans was not as strict in the Connecticut Valley region as in Pennsylvania and Cape Cod regions is a historical fact. Also that there were few violations of the Puritan moral code due to the use of this custom of love making is also noted. The center board, however, in the "bundling bed" in many cases was fastened down by parents before the youthful lovers started their "sparking". This latter process, however, was not employed in the play, when Prudence, the native daughter and a young Hessian have their "bundling" scene.

"The Pursuit of Happiness" includes in its excellent cast, Leon Forbes, Grace Cooper, Ruth Saville, Edna Ellsmere, John Delmore, Ben Legere, Don Gray, and J. Raymond Northcutt.

Household Questions

Cooking Sour Fruit—Sour fruit will require much less sugar, and be more digestible, if a dessert-spoonful of syrup and a pinch of bicarbonate of soda are added after cooking.

Don't Scratch the Table—If tiny squares of blanket or astrakhan cloth are stuck under the corners of your hand sewing machine it can be used on any table without fear of scratching it. Similar patches can also be used on clocks, or anything that stands on a polished surface.

Cheese Savoury—Spread seasoned cream cheese on small rounds of previously cooked short pastry. Over the cheese place a round of tomato and a dash of mayonnaise, and top each with a slice of olive. Place in paper containers, sprinkle with finely-grated cheese, and garnish with cress.—Miss E. Frus, Wimbledon Park.

To Prevent Scorching—Leave one small section of a gem pan empty when putting gem batter in pan. Fill this section with water and gems will never scorch.

Keeping Brassware Bright—Brass ornaments will remain bright longer if, after polishing, they are given a thin coat of white shellac.

To Freshen Coconut—Shredded coconut, which has become dry, can be freshened by soaking it in sweet milk a few minutes before using.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.
Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.
The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Reburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Amanda Dane. Unwittingly she overhears Jed talking to Mark Trent, nephew of Mrs. Dane who has been disinherited. Mrs. Dane had lived at Lookout House, a huge structure by the sea, built by her father and divided into two, for her and Mark's father. Brooke had been a fashion expert, and Mrs. Dane, a "shut-in," hearing her on the radio, had invited her to call and developed a deep affection for her. Mark discloses that Mrs. Dane had threatened to disinherit him if he married Lola, from whom he is now divorced. He says he does not trust Henri and Clotilde Jacques, Mrs. Dane's servants. He says he is not interested in an offer of Brooke's to share the estate with him. Leaving her department store job, Brooke refuses an offer to "go stepping" with Jerry Field, a carefree young man who wants to marry her. At a family conference she learns she must live at Lookout House alone, since Lucette, her younger sister who is taking her job, her brother, Sam, a young playwright, and her mother plan to stay in the city. Jed and Mark are astounded when they hear from Mrs. Gregory, a family friend, that she had witnessed a hitherto unknown will with Henri and Clotilde two weeks before Mrs. Dane died. Brooke had arrived just as she was leaving. Jed suggests that Mark open his part of Lookout House, get friendly with Brooke and try to find out about the will. Jed agrees to stay with him. Mark accepts Brooke's invitation for a family Thanksgiving dinner at Lookout. Mrs. Reburn announces on Thanksgiving eve that she has been invited to England. Sam and Lucette decide to move in with Brooke and Sam plans to produce a new play locally.

CHAPTER IV

Brooke noticed Mark Trent's quick glance about as he entered the dining-room at Lookout House. She felt an instant of self-consciousness as she took the seat against the variegated yellow background of tall mimosas and acacias which filled a broad bay-window, which her mother refused with a quick shake of her head and a smile. She immediately forgot herself in pride of her sporting family. Each one was so gay, so determined to do his or her share to make the party a real festivity. Holidays were hard days since her father's death, but always someone who was alone had been invited to keep the feast with them. Thinking of others helped immeasurably to bridge the sense of loss, Celia Reburn argued.

The dinner was a success. Brooke breathed a little sigh of relief as she rose from the table. This Thanksgiving dinner had been the first entertaining in her own home. Of course the guests had been her family and Mark Trent only, but she had felt pride in having it a success.

As she served coffee from the massive silver tray in the living-room, she glanced at Mark Trent standing before the fire. With his elbow on the mantel, he was talking to Celia Reburn seated in a corner of the couch. The orchids he had brought her added the perfect touch to her amethyst frock. Orchids for her mother, gardenias for Lucette, and deep fragrant purple violets for his hostess. He had said it with flowers. A lavish gentleman. Had Henri turned chalky as he had announced dinner, or had she imagined it? He had stared at Mark Trent as if seeing an unwelcome apparition.

With a groan of repletion Sam pulled himself out of a deep chair. "Boy, let's get out and walk! I feel like a stuffed, trussed turkey. Why do we eat so much more on Thanksgiving? Because we haven't any sense. Notice that I'm acquiring the analytic method, question and answer. Anybody here got the energy to take the shore walk?"

"I'll go with you, Sammy," Celia Reburn smiled at her tall son. "Elaine Jaffrey is a great hiker; she will probably walk me all over the British Isles. I must get in practice. Just wait until I change my shoes."

"Boy, I'm glad we have one sport in the family. I'll bet Lucette has a heavy date, and is expecting someone. Coming, Brooke? Coming, Mr. Trent?"

"Mark to you, I hope, Sam. Do come, Miss Reburn," Mark Trent urged. "It's a grand day. After hours of storm, there is enough wind to make the surf worth looking at."

"Worth looking at" were colorless words to express the grandeur of the shore, Brooke thought, as, standing on a jutting crag, holding on her beret with one hand, skirts blowing, she looked down at the driving current, cold and stealthy in places, in others foaming and tossing white-edged green waves against ledges transformed by the magic of the slanting sun into ruddy copper, dark brown in the crevices. Spray, diaphanous as a mist from a giant atomizer, iridescent as jeweled malines, shimmered in the light. Beyond the surf a dozen lavender winged gulls floated on the water. An amber green wave outlasted its predecessors, hissed, roared, broke against a ledge, and showered Brooke with crystal spray.

"Oh!" Instinctively she clutched Mark Trent's arm. "It—it took my breath!"

He drew her back to the path, pulled out his handkerchief, and wiped her wet face.

"I should have known better than to let you stand there."

"It wasn't your fault. I adored it. It made me feel as if every inch of me had been electrified. Why is it that when we are together I need to be rescued from difficulties? I want to thank you for—"

"Please, don't."

She wondered at the embarrassed fierceness of his voice.

"I won't, except to add that I know I owe my life to you. There, that's over. I promise never to mention it again."

Spurred by the stimulating air, she took her courage in both hands and plunged.

"Won't you please be friends? I didn't know Mrs. Mary Amanda Dane had any money, really I didn't, Mr. Trent."

In the instant that she waited for his answer, sun, sea, the roar of the surf were blotted out. Only his straight-gazing eyes meeting hers were real. They touched her heart, quickly, passionately. Then Mark Trent thrust his handkerchief into his pocket.

"Forget that Mr. Trent stuff. Being legatees in the same estate—my aunt left me a bank account, you know—ought to make us friends, oughtn't it?" His voice was light, but she sensed a tinge of irony.

"We'd better keep going if we are to walk around the point before dark. Your mother and Sam went on some time ago. What did she mean when she spoke of hiking over the British Isles?"

"She is going to England to visit her college classmate. Of course, I'm crazy to have her go, but—but I didn't realize how precious she was until I thought of her being so far away."

"Are your brother and sister going?"

"No. They are to be with me while Mother is away. I am so glad. It will give me heaps to do. I'm not used to this poison-ivy leisure that looked so alluring before I had tried it. My life was so full before—"

"Before you had Lookout House stuffed down your throat, you mean? I don't see why the dickens Aunt Mary Amanda tied that string to her legacy, forced you to live in this house."

"It wasn't a string, and she didn't force me. I like old towns, and I love Lookout House."

"My mistake," Trent's laugh turned to a frown. "What are the town fathers thinking of to allow a gas station stuck out on this road? Has that house been sold?"

Brooke promptly defended the brilliant equipment in front of a small white cottage.

"I don't know who owns the place, but doubtless the town fathers were thinking of giving the poor man who has started the filling-station another chance. I heard that he had money, lost it, began to drink too much, and that a friend set him up in business here hoping to steady him."

"Who told you the story of his life?"

"Henri."

"Henri! Does he know the man?"

"He will have to answer that question. He asked me to buy gas at the new filling-station, and I do to encourage the poor fellow to keep on trying to make good."

"How about encouraging honest Mike Cassidy who started the garage at the end of the causeway years ago and has served the public faithfully and unselfishly? He has a wife and five children to support."

Why did his voice rouse opposition in her, Brooke wondered. She had doubts herself lately as to the permanency of the filling-station owner's reform. Twice when she had stopped for gas, a young Irish girl had reported the boss as "sick," and she had wondered if he were backsliding. Mark the Magnificent need not know that, however.

"Don't you believe in helping a man to come back?" she asked crisply.

"I do, most decidedly, but I believe also in helping an honest hard-working man like Cassidy, who has had the strength of character to leave drink alone, to keep his kids in shoes. Come on. We are almost quarreling. Why should you and I fight over a filling-station owner?"

"You're right, when we have so many other things about which to disagree."

Brooke's brown eyes met his, intent and darkly gray; wistfulness tinged her voice as she urged:

"Speaking of disagreeing—will you please behave like a sensible person and take the family treasures which belong to you?"

"Aunt Mary Amanda left them to you."

"I know, but it isn't right for me to have them, and what's more, I don't need or want them. I'd rather go without rings all my life than wear one of those gorgeous things she left, which are rightfully yours. Mr. Stewart has put all the jewelry in a bank vault for you. I have Mother's lovely china and glass and furniture which have been in storage since our home was broken up. I've had everything which belonged to your family moved to the chauffeur's apartment over the garage. There seems to be very little silver. Perhaps your aunt gave it to you?"

"Silver! Very little silver! She had the Trent service which came originally from England and any number of beautiful pieces. That silver is a family tradition. Where is it? She didn't give it to me. What does Stewart say about it?"

"He thought that because of the epidemic of crime reported in the newspapers, Mrs. Dane might have become timid about keeping valuables in the house and had it stored in a bank. But he found no receipt for it among her papers. Do you think she sold it?"

"Sold it! No. I'll bet—" he broke off abruptly. "See that great rock sticking up off shore? I used to imagine it the peak of a submerged island rising from the sea."

"Perhaps it is. Islands arise, grow old and disappear." That isn't original. Sam has taken the title for his comedy from it. The first night I spent at Lookout House I was kept awake by the wailing of that distant siren. Now I don't notice it."

"You'll notice it if you stay here during the winter as Jed told me you were planning to do. There goes the sun behind the city!"

They walked in silence back to Lookout House. On the threshold of the living-room she stopped in startled disbelief. Jerry Field stood by the fire talking to her mother. Who was the brown-haired girl in blue beside Lucette?

"Couldn't wait for you to send out At Home cards, Brooke," Jerry Field greeted jauntily. "You remember that you said I could come to Lookout House when you were settled, don't you? I wanted to meet your family, wanted them to know that I'm in your tag line for sure."

His eyes flashed beyond her to Mark Trent on the threshold. There was laughter in his voice and a hint of challenge. Before she could answer, he commanded:

"Come hither, Daphne, and meet our neighbor. This is my sister."

"Neighbor!" Brooke smiled at the brown-haired girl as she welcomed her with a cordial handshake. "I would know that you were Jerry's sister, you look so like him; but is the neighbor stuff a joke?"

"No, Miss Reburn, we really are staying on the point."

Daphne Field's smile disclosed small teeth as perfect in color and size as a row of matched pearls. She turned to Sam.

"I've heard that you are the coming playwright, Mr. Reburn, that you have a touch of O'Neill's tragic outlook, a seasoning of Kaufman's humor, and a hint of Coward's sophistication."

Sam grinned. "Is that original, or did you get it from the Times?"

The girl pouted:

"Of course it's original. Why, Mark!"

Daphne Field's breathless exclamation, the radiance of her face revealed so much that Brooke had the embarrassed sense of having looked for an instant at a naked heart. Trent came forward. Was the firelight playing pranks, or had his face gone dark with color?

"Where did you drop from, Daphne? How are you, Field?"

Why didn't someone say something and smash the strained silence, Brooke wondered impatiently. It was as if the firelight had cast a spell and tied all their tongues. Her mother's eyes were on Daphne Field as she thoughtfully pulled her gloves through her hands. Sam, back to the room, was poking at the parrot. He had emotional scenes—off the stage. The atmosphere fairly quivered with things unsaid. Lucette came to life.

"Turn on the lights, Sam. This gloom may be artistic, but it gives me the merry-pranks. This has turned out to be meet-your-neighbor day, hasn't it? Who's the dame in the floppy hat, Brooke, who looks like a super-animated Bo-peep, and carries a cane which easily could be mistaken for a shepherd's crook? There's the chance of a lifetime for you to get in a little missionary work as clothes adviser; you'd better begin with a streamline diet. She thinks everything here, including Mother, 'charming.'"

Versatile Isles of Bermuda Now Enter the Air Picture

"Opening of regular passenger air service between the United States and Bermuda throws the aviation spotlight on the tiny, semi-tropical British colony out in the open Atlantic," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Versatile Bermuda thus adds to its role of health, pleasure, and yachting center, an important function as a 'stepping stone' on the projected southern transatlantic air route," the bulletin continues. "At present, only the 770-mile section between Port Washington, N. Y., and Hamilton, Bermuda, is in operation, and the traffic is being shared by Pan American Airways and the British Imperial Airways."

Once Scene of Many Shipwrecks.

"Although Bermuda is such a tiny pinprick on the map of the Atlantic ocean that radio directional beams are needed to guide modern flying boats to its shores, in earlier days it was a thorn in the side of mariners. Since its discovery, Juan de Bermudez, piled his ship up on its treacherous coral reefs in 1515, Bermuda has been the scene of countless shipwrecks, extending down to last year when the Spanish liner Cristobal Colon was lost off North Rock."

"Channels dredged through reefs, powerful lighthouses and other navigational aids, however, have virtually eliminated hazards to navigation, and today thousands of tourists from the United States, Canada and England visit the little mid-ocean island group annually.

"Industries are generally barred in the islands, yet Bermuda has some of the largest and finest resort hotels in the world, numerous shops and stores, and a perfume factory. Of increasing importance is its export trade of Easter lilies and early vegetables."

Air Base on Darrell Island.

"Perhaps the most conspicuous recent change is the new air base on Darrell island, in the sound near Hamilton, the capital. One end of this rocky, cedar-covered bit of land has been cleared. Two concrete slipways run up from the blue waters of the sound to an open space before a huge steel and glass hangar."

"At the other end of the colony, in St. George's, the returning traveler may notice large liners anchored within the almost landlocked harbor of the ancient capital of Bermuda. They have entered through the Town cut, a newly dredged channel, like a miniature Panama canal, between the main island of St. George's and Paget island."

"Across St. George's harbor an imposing new steel and concrete

Abiding Satisfaction

THE fountains of abiding satisfaction are within. No outside well can give us the waters of satisfaction and peace. They have all been tried, and men and women are foolish to try them still. No, our well of satisfaction must be one that is not endangered by change of circumstances.—J. H. Jowett.

True taste is forever growing, learning, reading, worshipping, laying its hand upon its mouth because it is astonished, casting its shoes from off its feet because it finds all ground holy.—Ruskin.

bridge now links St. David's, the arrowroot isle, with St. George's.

"Bermuda will become an even more important air base when the southern transatlantic air line is put into operation. The next lap eastward on this route is a 2,240-mile jump to Ponta Delgada, in the Azores, followed by a 900-mile hop to Lisbon, Portugal, and a 980-mile final link to London."

"Meanwhile plans are going forward for a north Atlantic line, following a projected route via the Irish Free State, Newfoundland, New Brunswick, and Montreal or New York. This latter route is shorter than the Bermuda-Azores-Portugal line, but has fewer days of favorable flying weather."

Will Reside In The Excelsior District

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carrillo returned from their honeymoon, spent at Catalina, to reside in the Excelsior District where they will be at home to their many friends. The young couple were married, June 30, in the Church of the Little Flower in Hollywood, California, and their wedding photograph was taken by the photographer of the Buddy Rogers-Mary Pickford wedding.

The groom who had been in the south for some time on business, flew north by plane for his bride, returning with her also by plane to Hollywood. Mr. and Mrs. M. Monreal of Hollywood stood up for the young couple. Both the bride and her attendant wore smart summer black and white dresses, with white accessories and gardenia corsages.

The bride was Miss Harriet McKenna of 60 Vienna street, San Francisco, daughter of Mrs. Harriet Swire. The groom is the son of Mrs. Molly Carrillo and the late Mr. Leo Carrillo of 12 Raymond avenue.

Mrs. Carrillo, the groom's mother, and her sister, Mrs. George Burgess, together with the bride's mother, Mrs. Swire were present at the wedding ceremony. They returned to San Francisco on Sunday, July 4.

Mrs. C. A. Louis and Miss Florence Louis spent the past week end at Monterey.

FAMILY ESCAPES DEADLY GAS

On arrival from their two weeks vacation in the country, last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Holt and their 11 year old son narrowly escaped death when Mrs. Holt discovered a deadly gas leaking from their refrigerator, caused when the compressor discharged a leakage of gas which previously has been drawn through the suction line from the evaporator. Although this leakage very seldom occurs, it is very dangerous when a person is compelled to inhale the fumes.

Our correspondent wishes to warn all owners of refrigerators of this impending danger, and that if at any time you discover your refrigerator leaking gas immediately notify a repair man.

Won Home 2 Years Ago-Is Now Married

Carl Bauman, aged 38, of Brisbane, and Mary Hosoard, aged 18, of San Francisco, were married on Saturday, July 3.

They used every effort to keep their friends from learning of the wedding. However, this week the news leaked through some friend in whom they had confided.

Carl won a home on an eminence overlooking the bay, in Brisbane, some two years or more ago, and it is but fitting that he should now acquire a wife to share its occupancy. The happy couple have set up house-keeping, and will be at home to friends in their new abode.

MOTHER AND SON RIVER VICTIMS AS VACATIONING AT SACRAMENTO

Former Loses Life In Vain Attempt To Rescue Drowning Youth

Local Scouts attended the funeral of their late comrade, Rolston Arthur Corwin, 11, son of Mrs. Luella Donald of Brunswick street, Thursday of last week at 2 o'clock.

The youth was vacationing with his mother in Garberville and drowned in the Eel River on Monday of last week.

Hearing his screams, the mother jumped in to save him, but gave her life in a vain attempt. At a coroners inquest in that city it was announced that Mrs. Donald died of shock and not by drowning. This was given as the reason her body floated to the surface and was recovered several hours before that of the son, who had dropped into a hole 20 feet deep.

Percy C. Donald, the bereaved husband, brought the bodies from Garberville, on their release by authorities, in his car, to a San Francisco mortuary establishment and made the trip unaccompanied by friend or relative.

The pall bearers at the funeral were Sea Scouts Albert MacCarthy and James Lederman, Scouts of Troop 149, Donald McHugh and Robert Riordan, Cubs Steve Cosgrave and Eugene Laurie. Tom Beeson played taps.

The mother and son were interred together in Mt. Olivet Cemetery. Mrs. Donald, 31, was a past president of Castro Parlors No. 178, Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Committee Busy Completing Arrangements For Annual Convention Soon

Plans are progressing at Sacramento for the fourth annual convention of the California Moose Association, Loyal Order of Moose, to be held in the shadow of Capitol dome, July 22 to 25.

Three thousand members, with their wives and friends, are expected to participate in what the general chairman promises will be an "excellent" four-day program.

The women's chapters will meet simultaneously. Mrs. Mildred Hill heads the committees arranging their activities. Convention headquarters have been established in Hotel Senator, facing Capitol Park.

It is anticipated delegates will be present from each of the 141 Moose units in California, comprised of 78 men's lodges, 50 women's chapters and 13 legions, the latter being the second degree organization.
